@Michelle Stronz are we able to add one for dinner? I'd like to invite Daniel. It would be good for him to spend some time with Steven/Sean.

Good morning! I've been chewing on one thing Ross said in our Fed feedback meeting yesterday -- the number one thing that has caused problems for the Fed with de novo banks is that they don't have enough people experienced in bank regulations. Net-net, @Michelle Stronz please prioritize that in the CCO search. Chuck didn't even have that (even though he had BSA/AML experience, it was for a commodities firm not a bank), so I think in the regulators' eyes a bank-experienced CCO may be perceived as an upgrade. Related, I think the next director we add to the Board needs to have that background as well. Michelle -- I know we de-emphasized bank compliance experience in the prior assessment of Board candidates to fill Bryan's old seat, but if we add a 7th director after a potential Series B adds a 6th, then we should place a higher emphasis on that experience in our search.

PS -- Michelle, this is why I asked you for your bank experience yesterday. I think we have more bank-experienced people in the company than they realize, but I understand why they're asking about it. Compliance, ops & finance are the #1 areas where they'll want bank-experienced people. Borges & Coleman check the latter two boxes, as does Kayla, but we need to supplement her with BANK EXPERIENCED compliance folks. thx
